

how are you doing?

pretty nervous... maybe we shouldn't have come

two years is a long time - the last time they saw me, I had a beard!

babe, they're your family!

they want you to be happy!
to succeed!
and look at you, you're thriving!

yeah...

What kind of worries are you having?

I'm worried that what they want is that quiet bearded boy from before and that after coming out as a trans woman, I'll be a shameful secret

I'm worried they wish I'd stayed away so they can forget about me most of all, I'm worried that even though I finally feel good, they'll ask me why I couldn't just learn to be proud of myself as a man and that they won't understand how much pain I was in before, and how happy I am now

